

Look! A rainbow!

One of the stories we sing about in Young and the Restless Chapel is Noah's Ark. There are so many elements to this story that are fascinating and awe inspiring. One Chapel Service, a prism was tied to the shade and it remains there still. That week, I gave each child their own prism to hang in their rooms so they would remember the story. Naihm was there that month, and has her own rainbow maker.

Last week, as I was lighting candles following our story of the Star of Bethlehem, the sun shone in such a way that there were a few rainbows cast about the room. Naihm clapped her hands in delight and pointed to them with glee saying, "Rainbow! Rainbow!" Someone mentioned that it was funny how excited they get, even after seeing something a hundred times. It is as if it were their first time.

I pray that this is true for us all, when we encounter the familiar in God.
